

Try an offbeat adventure: Kayak in Manhattan, peda

03/07/2006

BLOG: Clara Bosonetto Maerz Budget Traveler

WallBounce does flyovers, submarine shark diving

The "Let's do lunch" line will never be the same after a fly-over of California's Orange County countryside and landing in your private helicopter on a secluded spot for a lunch prepared by Executive Chef Felix Salcedo of the Newport Cannery Seafood. After lunch, your helicopter takes you back to the John Wayne Airport along the Pacific shoreline at sunset.

This romantic package, priced at $1,000, can be yours when you need to celebrate a significant anniversary or pop the big question.

The same company that can arrange this ultimate lunch, WallBounce, can also arrange Submarine Shark Diving in Honduras at a $2,750 package price tag. Trips include all except airfare, such as all meals, lodging and the underwater adventures in a deep diving submersible which can carry three people to a depth of 3,000 feet. Dives last up to six hours.

And if you've got $3,495, WallBounce can arrange for you to take 60 laps around the Talladega Superspeedway with Dale Jarrett's Racing Adventure. If you can imagine it, WallBounce can probably make it happen. wallbounce.com